License Types

1) Developer / deployment license

A "Developer License" licenses only ONE developer to create ONE .NET application using our product. A "Developer License" must be purchased for each developer utilizing the component; alternatively, a "Company License" can be purchased which licenses all developers at one physical location. "Developer License" is not royalty free. You need to purchase an additional license for each deployment. The developer license does not include technical support or software updates.

2) Developer / deployment license with maintenance

A "Developer License with Maintenance" licenses only ONE developer to create ONE .NET application using our product. A "Developer License with Maintenance" must be purchased for each developer utilizing the component; alternatively, a "Company License" can be purchased which licenses all developers at one physical location. "Developer License with Maintenance" is not royalty free. You need to purchase an additional license for each deployment. The developer license with maintenance includes technical support and software updates for one year.

3) Company / redistributable license

A "Company License" licenses all developers within one company at one physical location to create an unlimited number of .NET applications using ExpertPDF. If there is more than one physical location for your company, you would need to purchase the appropriate licenses for each location. "Company License" is royalty free. "Company License" includes priority email support and full major and minor version upgrades for one year.

4) Demo License

A "Demo License" can be used only to evaluate the Software in order to make sure it fully meets your requirements. It cannot be used in personal or commercial products.

License Renewals

Special renewal prices are available for existing customers in certain conditions. To qualify for a license renewal you need to purchase the renewal within 3 months of the maintenance plan expiration. Otherwise, a full license needs to be purchased.

 - The products are well documented and we offer fully functional samples with full source code to get started with the product.

 - We offer free technical and sales support by email during the evaluation period and after the product purchase.

 - We encourage you to completely test our products both in development and production environments to see if they entirely meet your expectations before making the purchase decision.
