Exchange Server Archiver

Email archiving software that works out-of-the-box

"Exchange Server Archiver is almost 100% invisible to Outlook end-users. The tool is very simple to install and manage. That combined with the ability to set-up different rules depending on user mailbox, makes the system easy to configure for all types of situations! I'd recommend this product to anyone who needs to archive exchange email!" Matthew Studer, Riverside Radiology Associates

Transparent email archiving

The Outlook Add-in provides a transparent end-user experience with message preview, instant retrieval and an integrated search of both archived and non-archived messages. Minor differences between the archived and non-archived mailboxes are the icons against the archived messages and the appearance of the integrated search box. Emails and attachments are retrieved, viewed, and searched in the normal way.

The Outlook inbox on the left is before archiving, on the right after archiving. The only difference is the slight change to the colour of the icons of the archived emails.

How does Exchange Server Archiver work?

When you install Exchange Server Archiver, nothing is installed on your Exchange server and no information is stored in the Active Directory[®].

Once installed, an Admin Console provides an easy-to-use graphical user interface for you to configure and manage Exchange Server Archiver.

The Archive Service accesses the mailboxes using configurable and granular rules, and then determines which messages to extract, archive, and stub. It then compresses the messages to be archived, and passes them to the appropriate Storage Service.

The User Archive Access (UAA) Service enables your users to access archived messages. If you choose not to install the Outlook Add-in or the Outlook Web Access Add-in, users can use the Web pages provided by the UAA Service to access their message

"In Red Gate's Exchange Server Archiver we have found the perfect blend of customization and ease-of-use. Having a wide range of clients it was important to us to have software that wouldn't impose itself on the way our clients currently work. It is possible to implement the product without the users seeing any difference which is why we choose to use this software over others. Installation is extremely easy and is backed up by an excellent support team." Alex Eley, Stripe Consulting
