

ZingChart Website License

Updated April 27, 2016

Grant of License

The ZingChart Website license is for use on a single domain. The website which lives on this domain should be publicly accessible. This means when a user comes to the website, there should be no requirement to login to access the site or any of its charts.

If users are required to login to view charts or to access the website, you should consider either Internal licensing or SaaS licensing, depending on the type of users you have for your app.

Website licenses can not be used for product development. If you are developing a product and need a solution during your evaluation please contact sales@zingchart.com.

The License File

The website license includes licensing for a single production domain (www.domain.com). Additionally, we will provide a license for a single subdomain for development and testing:

subdomain.domain.com

If you need additional subdomains, please contact sales@zingchart.com with:
